

CHARLOTTESVILLE
SYMPHONY

AT THE UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

Riding the Sound Waves

The Charlottesville Symphony at the University of Virginia
Invites fourth and fifth grade students to attend its

2019 Youth Concerts

Thursday, October 17, 2019
Old Cabell Hall, University of Virginia
10:00AM and 11:30AM

Conductor and Narrator: Benjamin Rous

Explore the science of sound with the Charlottesville Symphony and Music Director Benjamin Rous. Observe how the materials from which musical instruments are constructed, the length and overall size of their various parts, and the different ways in which they are played create a variety of sounds that can be combined into works of art written for full symphonic orchestra. Meet the orchestral families as you listen to the music of Dukas, Glinka, Sousa, Ives, Anderson and Stravinsky on Thursday, October 17, 2019 in UVA's historic Old Cabell Hall. Watch for more details and reservation information in early August, and visit our website:

www.cvillesymphony.org

Sponsors: The Charlottesville Symphony Society, the McIntire Department of Music at the University of Virginia, and the Mr. and Mrs. James L. Brown Endowment Fund.